The purpose of the KAB Hotlines is to provide members a reliable, quickly available source of expert legal advice for answers to your legal questions. Depending on your question and its scope, call one of the firms listed.

~~~~~

David Oxenford will provide general answers to routine legal questions facing broadcasters including EEO requirements, political broadcasting, contests and lotteries, filing fees and other routine FCC filing requirements, children's television, ownership matters, and other federal communications/broadcast matters that can be answered in a single telephone call without putting the firm into any adversarial position with another station. The firm will also be able to give you up to the minute updates on the status of general regulatory changes at the FCC.

Max Kautsch, is a Washburn Law graduate and has been in private practice in Lawrence since 2003. As KAB's local attorney, he will respond to your questions related to open meetings/records, and a variety of state only issues. In cases when a brief telephone consultation is inadequate to address the problem, the station may retain the attorney for direct representation. In cases involving disputes among KAB members, the attorney will provide general or hypothetical advice on the legal issues but cannot provide specific counsel as to what actions are appropriate.
